Coordinated Training Program Builds Stronger Responder Corps for Safer Incident Recovery

Unified “team” approach allows the roads to be cleared faster

A new coordinated, multi-disciplinary training program developed through the second Strategic Highway Research Program (SHRP2) is now available for all emergency responders and those supporting Traffic Incident Management operations. The training puts Law Enforcement, Firefighters, state and local departments of transportation, towing, medical personnel, and other incident responders on the same page, leading to a safer, faster, integrated responder team.

The training is delivered through an interactive seminar which includes case study analysis, tabletop role-play and scenario. Participants attend a four-hour training session that has shown to facilitate traffic incident recovery, resulting in streamlined, effective responses while building a common platform of proven practices in incident management training.

Public agencies that have at least 60% of their members attend the TIM training will receive $1000 worth of traffic safety devices. Agencies must be a paid or volunteer fire department, EMS department, emergency management agency, community emergency response team, a law enforcement agency, or a public works department. 3 CEH’s will also be awarded for EMS continuing education.
